The Camping Trip

We roughed it at Old Piney Park,
With tents and hot dogs after dark.
I'd barely yawned and gone to sleep,
When I felt something creep, creep, creep,
A slimy something crawled on me,
Across my toe, up to my knee.

Essential Question
What makes you laugh?
Read two poems about funny situations.
Ridiculous! Hard to believe,
That creature slithered up my sleeve.
It was not humorous or fun.
I hollered "Rattlesnake! Let’s run!"
We all jumped up and stomped around,
Our tent collapsed flat on the ground.
Ten flashlights clicked on to reveal,
That creepy crawly by my heel.
I blushed bright red, "Oops, I was wrong."
Snake?
No, a lizard—one-inch long.
— Constance Andrea Keremes
I bought a pack of bubble gum,
As I do every week,
Unwrapping 10 or 20 sticks,
   I popped them in my cheek.

I started masticating,
   That's a fancy word for chew,
The gum became a juicy gob,
   I took a breath and blew.

I suddenly inflated,
   Puffing up like a balloon,
I was a giant bubble,
   Big and round as a full moon.

My father hit the ceiling,
   He was really in a stew,
He hollered, "Stop! Don't go!"
   As out the door I flew.
The neighbors' eyes were popping,
They dropped everything to see,
I was the entertainment of the day,
Forget about TV.

If you like bubble gum, beware—
Chew just one stick a day,
Or you'll become a bubble, too
And float up, up, AWAY!

I saw my friends below me,
And let loose a mighty roar,
WHOOSH!
All my air blew out,
And I was just a kid once more.

—Diana Kent
